Being more aware and critical of the data in my daily life is so important!! Also Just wanted to say thank you to Ayoung for making this quarter and this seminar so wonderful!! Best T.A. ever!!
I found the different case studies that were covered in seminar to be the most interesting because it provided us real-world examples as to why we should always be skeptical consumers of data. I found the skills of microfoundations to be the most valuable because I have been able to incorporate these practices in my personal life when consuming news and content on the media, etc. Overall, I am absolutely honored to have been a student of Ayoung's. I consider her to be one of the best TA's I've had at UCLA thus far, you can tell that she genuinely cares about not only our education but also our well-being.
I loved how this course targeted the real life consequences of misrepresentations of data, and used real life examples in order to show us the implications on society. This course was very eye opening and made me more cognizant of the dangers of blindly accepting data visualizations as the "truth" without considering the manner in which they are presented, the inherent biases, and the creators of the data. I found these takeaways to be most valuable, since it will help me become a more skeptical consumer of data, and can help me be a more educated member of society.
Interesting: microfoundations, examples of biopower abuse, and certain examples of misuse/ falsification of statistics.
I found the misleading data representations used by people of power to be really interesting. Usually, these representations seem very abstract or inapplicable but Ayoung did a great job finding examples that were relatable, putting a greater emphasis on them.
I loved Ayoung's avenue for this seminar. Topics I thought I'd never find interesting I found myself being especially curious. I would even do my own research outside of class and reference it when I was writing my papers and explaining my takes.

In your opinion, how could this seminar be improved? (maximum 5000 characters)

I feel that certain topics discussed in this seminar were slightly repetitive of topics covered in past quarters. Nonetheless, it is always good to review and get a refresher.

This seminar is great, and I loved the way it was structured. Ayoung always encouraged us to participate in lively discussion, but was also perceptive of our different styles of learning. This helped us form bonds with people in class, and collaborate in order to exchange ideas that helped us learn from each other rather than taking a more individual approach to the course. My only suggestion would be to list the requirements for each assignment on canvas or in the syllabus in more detail, especially if the rubric has changed since the beginning of the quarter. This is helpful to students who may have missed class, or need a refresher on the details of the prompt before starting the writing assignments.

I wish I had received more feedback on writing and the discussions in class were more controversial/ thought-provoking.

I think the seminar could have used some variations in the lectures but I really liked the course overall. Ayoung was incredibly kind, funny, and dedicated. She was a wonderful TA and I was very grateful for her effort put into this class. She knew our fun facts and names almost immediately, she did not cancel a class despite her surgery, and always came with prepared materials.

I feel like we should have had more open debates because that could have been very fun and rewarding. We did one in the first class and it was super intimidating but the genuine flow of it felt really cool. If we did that again with the later concepts learned, it could've been cool.
